Welcome to Earth Path! Over the course of the program, we will spend full days outside exploring, playing, and working on various projects. As we get to know the animals and plants of the woods, we may use tools and develop a number of skills for engaging with these creatures, including tracking, harvesting wild foods, carving, shelter building, and making fire. Many of these skills offer elements that, even if done correctly, have the potential for danger. Participants will be closely supervised by lead mentors and/or trained volunteers that have been practicing outdoor survival skills and are well-trained in engaging the wild in a safe and respectful way. Below are some of the elements that can be potentially dangerous.

Knives - There is always real danger in using a knife. As is often the case, prevention is the best medicine. Before any knives are used by the kids, we will go over safety and each kid will receive one-on-one knife safety instruction. There are 5 main rules for using a knife safely:

- 1) ask permission from one of the mentors;
- 2) find a quiet space where there are no people and sit down, ensuring a safety circle (keep a safe distance of at least one arm's length from other people); tell others you are using a knife;
- 3) sit properly, ensuring that no part of your body is below your knife and carving project;
- 4) always carve slowly, down toward the ground and away from yourself; and
- 5) when done, put the knife back in its sheath. With proper care and attentiveness knives are safe and an incredibly rewarding tool.

Fire - Fire is a central tenet of our community. We will be making fires regularly, and we will be learning how to tend a fire in a way that leaves minimal impact. We will learn how to safely manage a fire, and each child will have the opportunity to help build a fire. We will have one fire keeper at a time.

Other Tools - At other points throughout the program, we may be using saws, hatchets, and other tools. As with knives, for each tool we will talk about the potential dangers and always review and practice safe techniques for using each. We keep a low ratio of kids to mentors to ensure each kid is given proper attention when using potentially dangerous tools.

I, _____ hereby give permission for my child and/or ward, _____ to use a knife and other tools listed above under the supervision of an Earth Path program mentor or other trained volunteer/partner during all Earth Path programs in which she/he participates in 2019. I have read the above on Knives, Fire, and Other Tools Safety, and understand both the risks involved and that reasonable care will be taken to ensure my child's safety.
